JOB PROFILE

N° Galaxie : 4162

N° of the committee: 1

N° of the position: 417

Nature of the position: PU (Full Professor)

Section CNU: 15

Job heading : Yoruba : literature and didactics

Teaching :

The successful candidate will teach in the Yoruba studies program, offering language and literature courses as well as advising Master and PhD students.

The ideal candidate, equipped with knowledge on didactics, will be able to integrate into his/her courses a reflection on the teaching/learning of Yoruba language and literature that considers all the narrative forms available in Yoruba (oral, written, cultural press, cinematic productions from Nollywood, animated films) and the variety of media in this language.

Depending on his/her area of expertise, the successful candidate will be able to teach some of the department's cross-disciplinary courses (particularly in literature) or some interdisciplinary graduate and undergraduate courses for the INALCO.

The successful candidate should master educational technologies so that he/she can assist in the implementation of the distance learning program currently in place. He/She should be able to help create pedagogical tools, potentially digital ones.

The successful candidate should have some experience establishing cooperative projects, as he/she will have to contribute to the program's standing by creating and maintaining partnerships abroad. He/She will have to maintain existing agreements with the University of Ibadan (Ibadan, Nigera), the University of Obafemi Awolowo (Ilé-Ife, Nigeria), and the University of Dalarna (Falun, Sweden); he/she will also help to create new agreements.

He/She may have to teach courses in English.

Research:

PLIDAM

The professor will join the PLIDAM EA4514 research team, which is organized around 6 Axes, across international networks: Axe 1) linguistic policies, plurilingualism, representations; Axe 2) Language knowledge: construction and evaluation; Axe 3) Teaching strategies for lexicon and translation; Axe 4) Literature and culture in language teaching; Axe 5) Creating pedagogical tools in a plurilingual perspective; Axe 6) SemioMed-Semiotics, uses of multimedia corpora.

The PLIDAM laboratory leads cooperative projects with numerous research teams, in France and abroad, on didactics of language, literature, and foreign cultures in multilingual contexts. The teaching and learning of Yoruba is of great interest in the field of language and culture didactics; it is a language that, due to its contribution to the socio-political and linguistic landscape of a multi-ethnic, multilingual and multicultural Nigeria, serves as a point of reference for discussions about language, education and development in Africa.

In the cultural and literary fields, various works relating to Yoruba (the Nobel prize for Literature [1986], Wolé Soyinka, D.O Fágúnwà, Amos Tutùólá, the online artistic contributions and those of Nollywood...) can help to develop a more global, theoretical approach to the teaching and learning of languages and literatures in a multilingual context, a major issue in contemporary Africa. An understanding of the contributions of Yoruba to the Afro-Brazilian culture would be a plus.

The successful candidate will be invited to get involved in the laboratory's collective projects, which would require significant pedagogical experience and some reflection on language teaching, African literature and plurilingualism, especially in the African context.
